Profile

Every company needs a problem-solver, a thinker, a strategist and catalyst for growth. Stephanie is that solution for our clients. Understanding the many ways that diverse business units interact within a greater corporate machine, Stephanie attacks issues as a troubleshooter, getting to the heart of what our clients need, anticipating challenges and realizing opportunities to advance their overall business.

With a straightforward approach and direct advice, Stephanie's priority is to help clients move forward in their business.

In addition to her legal background, Stephanie has a strong business advisory skillset, having previously worked as a management consultant advising public and private sector clients on operations, human capital and strategic business issues.

This experience gives Stephanie insight into the needs, priorities and values of not only a client's broader business but also their department-by-department operations and interactions. With the experience she gained consulting on executive projects that affect the entire organization, Stephanie realizes the core of a company's culture and goals.

Recognizing that business is all about strategy and service, Stephanie has mirrored her practice to reflect that character. She anticipates legal issues before they become business problems, distills complex legal concepts into commercial applications and provides practice advice from both a legal and a business perspective, which all works together to allow our clients to make informed decisions that bring success.
