Profile

Ask questions, embrace change and keep it practical. These are the standards that guide Jeff's work in helping our clients engage in large-scale technology projects, outsource core business processes and resolve privacy issues.

Understanding the key factors and pain points that arise in complex technology transactions, Jeff provides strategic guidance and advice through the procurement and contracting phases, delivering effective outcomes that benefit all parties. He assists clients on an array of technology projects, ranging from systems integration deals, transitioning to the cloud and technology commercialization to hardware purchases, B2B and online agreements and commercial contracting.

Work Highlights

Jeff provides our public sector and entrepreneurial clients with valuable commercial insights aligned to each organization's unique needs. He has extensive experience working with the government and higher education institutions and a deep understanding of the BC public sector's business model. He is committed to delivering successful results and advancing their goals.

For our start-up clients, Jeff advises on how to evolve, grow and protect their businesses, from incorporation through commercialization and beyond.
