

Aly Karmali

Director of Strategic Partnerships

604 643 3133

akarmali@cwilson.com

Profile

Serving as Director of Strategic Partnerships, Aly helps connect the firm to new opportunities by leveraging more than 30 years of experience in banking, corporate finance, and advisory services. He draws on an extensive and trusted network, particularly within the financial sector, to identify where the firm's legal services can support clients in achieving their business goals. Aly focuses on facilitating introductions, sparking conversations, and helping build relationships that lead to long-term value for both the firm and its clients.

Aly's career includes senior roles at global financial institutions, where he worked with high-net-worth individuals, mid-market businesses, and growth-stage companies. His experience spans private banking, corporate / commercial finance, and strategic advisory, giving him insight into the challenges faced by financial and commercial clients. Over the years, he has supported clients through capital planning, business transitions, and financing strategies. This perspective helps him recognize when legal insight can provide a meaningful advantage.

At Clark Wilson, Aly helps connect prospective clients with the lawyers best suited to support their goals. His approach is relationship-based, consultative, and grounded in trust. By opening doors through his professional network, Aly supports the firm's continued growth and strengthens its presence in the business and financial community.