"One of the aspects of articling at Clark Wilson that I appreciate the most is that the lawyers will take the time to explain the context and background before assigning a task. Understanding how the work I am doing fits into the bigger picture not only makes the work more efficient, but it provides a sense of purpose and makes for a better learning experience. It has also allowed me to see how much responsibility is given to students and how much confidence the lawyers have in us to do good work and really contribute to a file."
